Like many other developers, I am rather disappointed with the Proposed Final Judgement in several respects. I feel that it does not punish Microsoft sufficiently for anticompetitive practices, but more importantly it will not effectively prevent such practices in the future.

To list a few brief examples: (1) The definition of "API" used in the PFJ is too narrow and does not include many critical features. (2) The PFJ does not mandate the publication of Microsoft file formats, which are critical to providing interoperability with the monopoly's products. (3) The PFJ does not require sufficient advance notice by Microsoft of technical requirements and API changes.

For these and many other reasons, I wish to register my dissatisfaction with the Proposed Final Judgement as it currently stands. Thank you for your efforts on behalf of the citizens of the United States.

Sincerely,

Ray Ingles (248) 737-7300 raymond.ingles@compuware.com
